C. Technical - Justification

1. Has this proposal for addition of character(s) been submitted before?	No
If YES explain
2. Has contact been made to members of the user community (for example: National Body, user groups of the script or characters, other experts, etc.)?	Yes
If YES, with whom?	Yi Language Associate's Team of Yunnan, Sichuan, Guizhou and Guangxi Provinces and some famous experts in China
If YES, available relevant documents:	Standing Order by Yi Language Associate's Team of Yunnan, Sichuan, Guizhou and Guangxi Provinces (See Annex)
3. Information on the user community for the proposed characters (for example: size, demographics, information technology use, or publishing use) is included?
Reference:	There is a population of over 8,000,000 people in the Yi regions of Yunnan, Sichuan, Guizhou and Guangxi. Concerning information technology, only 1,500,000 Yi people in the northern dialect regions use the 819 Modern Yi characters derived from the Classical Yi. Though encoded, they are syllabic. Classical Yi is in fact a writing system which is very much similar to the Han Characters. From its philological perspective, Classical Yi has all the philological features such as hieroglyphic, ideographic, phonographic, phonetic loaning, associative compounding, self-explanatory characteristics. This writing system has been used to record ancient Chinese civilization, proof of which can be found in the ancient Yi manuscripts and inscriptive texts on parchments, bamboo rolls, bronze bells, bridges and tombstones in the Yi regions. Since the beginning of fifties in the last century, the Yi translators' group have translated dozens of ancient Yi texts. However, they are only few corners of icebergs. There still thousand volumes of Yi texts remain uncollected and untranslated, let alone information technology use.
4. The context of use for the proposed characters (type of use; common or rare)	Very common
Reference:	Classical Yi is commonly used in daily oral communication and Yi priests in the Yi regions of Yunnan, Sichuan, Guizhou and Guangxi Provinces.
5. Are the proposed characters in current use by the user community?	Yes
If YES, where? Reference:	In the bilingual schools and colleges of Yi regions of Yunnan, Sichuan, Guizhou and Guangxi provinces. The proposed characters are also used in researches on the ancient texts.
6. After giving due considerations to the principles in the P&P document must the proposed characters be entirely in the BMP?
If YES, is a rationale provided?
If YES, reference:
7. Should the proposed characters be kept together in a contiguous range (rather than being scattered)?	Yes.
8. Can any of the proposed characters be considered a presentation form of an existing character or character sequence?	No
If YES, is a rationale for its inclusion provided?
If YES, reference:
9. Can any of the proposed characters be encoded using a composed character sequence of either existing characters or other proposed characters?	No
If YES, is a rationale for its inclusion provided?
If YES, reference:
10. Can any of the proposed character(s) be considered to be similar (in appearance or function) to an existing character?	No
If YES, is a rationale for its inclusion provided?
If YES, reference:
11. Does the proposal include use of combining characters and/or use of composite sequences?	No
If YES, is a rationale for such use provided?
If YES, reference:
Is a list of composite sequences and their corresponding glyph images (graphic symbols) provided?
If YES, reference:
12. Does the proposal contain characters with any special properties such as control function or similar semantics?	No
If YES, describe in detail (include attachment if necessary)
13. Does the proposal contain any Ideographic compatibility character(s)?	No

Proposal to encode Classical Yi Characters

1. History of the Yi Script

When and where the Yi script first came into existence was unknown. There are various traditions as to who invented the script and when. In the past, the Yi scholars' communities accounted it in different way. Some said that Classical Yi was created in the Han Dynasty and became systemized in the Tang Dynasty. Others said it was coined in the Tang Dynasty and developed into a writing system in the Han Dynasty. Some people even said Classical Yi was created and became a systemized language in the Han Dynasty. All the above conjectures became negated when two ancient theoretical books on Yi literature was unearthed, sorted, translated and published. These two books are "On Versed Yi Literature" and "On Versification of Yi Writers' Works" which was universally acknowledged among scholars as written in Dynasties of Wei, Jin, Nan and Bei, and Tang Dynasty. This agrees almost with the Yi scholar's viewpoint that Classical Yi was a popular language in Dynasties of East Han and West Han. After the scored glyphs at Banpo in Xi'an city were unearthed and exhibited, some Yi experts pointed out that Classical Yi is homologous with these glyphs which suggest that Classical Yi was created between 6300 and 6800 years ago. Some Chinese scholars validated that the carving glyphs unearthed at the site of Pengtou Hill of Li County in Hunan Province was the original form of Classical Yi character. These are the glyphs created between 8200 and 9000 years ago, which demonstrates that Classical Yi was probably created 9000 ago. Though these viewpoints are disputing, they are worthwhile discussing. However, one point is certain that Classical Yi is one of the oldest writing systems among all the Chinese languages, and even in the world. Up to the present, quite a number of carved glyphs excavated in northwest and southwest China and along Yangtze River and Yellow River shared great likeness or similarities in word formation and meaning. Today, the earliest surviving dated materials we can find in the Yi populated regions are monumental inscriptions dating to the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, for example:

- Bronze bell from Dafang 大方 county in Guizhou with Chinese and Yi inscriptions dated 1485 (See Illustration 1)
- Rock inscriptions in Yi and Chinese at Luquan 禄劝 county in Yunnan dated 1533
- Monumental inscription in Yi and Chinese commemorating the construction of a stone bridge at Dafang county in Guizhou dated 1592 (See Illustration 2)
- Memorial stone with inscriptions in Yi and Chinese at Dafang county in Guizhou dated 1546 (See Illustration 3)

In fact there are tens of thousands of Yi manuscripts (see picture 5, 6, 7 and 8) dating back several centuries still in existence, and as most of them are undated, it is quite possible that some of them do predate the already ascertained earliest monumental inscriptions. There are also many undated Yi inscriptions on tombstones and road signs, as well as divination inscriptions on animal bones. Many ancient books, records and documents have been collected in many libraries, research institutes and translation agencies both at home and abroad. And many more are privately collected by many common Yi people. These Yi historical records, documents and books deal with many aspects such as religions, history, philosophy, literature, language and its writing, medicines and medicals, astronomy, geography and farming skills. Some famous works are mentioned as examples in the follows. Xinan Yizhi (西南彝志 Yi Records in the Southwest), known as Yi's encyclopedia, containing 378,000 characters, deals with many aspects of human culture. It records the ancient Yi people's rich knowledge about the universe, the history of human being, "Bagua" (The Eight Trigrams) and "Hetu", the explanation and practice of "Jingluo"(Chinese and Yi medical term, means main and collateral channels in a human being's body), and astronomy and Yi calendar. Qigushu (启谷署) is a Yi medical written work or dictionary which is said to be written in the reign of Emperor Jiajing of Ming dynasty and won the title of "bright bear in Ailao Distriction. Asima(阿诗玛, a long narrative poem in Sani Dialect, is a classic works. Beside, the Creation of Universe (创世记), Great Flood (洪水泛滥史), and the Filiations of Human Being (人类的起源) are also well-known works written in Yi. The Yi works were often written on paper, silk cloth and skins of sheep, goats or oxen with brush or bamboo slips, while a few of them were also carved on bamboo tubes, bamboo slips or on bones of oxen, sheep or goats with knives. Most of the Yi works were handwritten, and few were wood plate-printed or lithographic printed. More than thousand handwritten books on Yi history and culture have been found circulating in different Yi inhabited areas, most of which are about the creation of the heaven and earth, the origination of human being, the Great Flood, Marriage between Elder Brother and Younger Sister, wars and migrations, philosophy, arts and religions etc. Four great epics---Lengeteyi (妈妈的女儿 Mama's Daughter), Meige (梅葛), and Chamu (查姆), four great narrative poems---Asima (阿诗玛), are favorite readings among readers at home and abroad, of which Asima has been translated into a dozen languages and has won a worldwide reputation. Much medical knowledge was also well recorded in Yi documents. Some works on Yi medical practice written in Yi during the period of Yuan and Qing dynasties are listed below: A List of Some Prescriptions (献药供牲经), Guidance for the Soul of the Deceased (指路经), etc. In the past decades, literate works and arts by contemporary authors and artists have been developed well and many famous author and artists have been appearing in the horizon. Many of the Yi characters were inscribed on tablets or carved on rocks. The Yi characters on Houqi Tablet (火济碑) excavated in Dafang county, Guizhou province were carved in East Jin dynasty. The bronze or copper bell, also found in Dafang, which was molded in the 21st year of the reign of Emperor Chenghua in Ming dynasty (1485 A.D), was engraved in both

Chinese and Yi characters. The Cliff Engraved with Characters (鐫字岩) in Luquan county, Yunnan province, which was engraved in the 12th year of the reign of Emperor Jiajing in Ming dynasty (1533A.D), was also engraved in both Chinese and Yi characters. Tombs stone tablets and guiding stone tablets carved in Yi characters are countless. Bones of oxen, sheep and goats and tiles carved with fortune-telling instructions in Yi characters are also numerous.

Pines are tall and big around the deep lake. Our story is miserable, handed down from ancient times. There were no inhabitants in Ajdi of Yi tribe, except Grujmin's family. Bees didn't stay on the flowers, Grujmin's wife couldn't bear child, they were very sad. Grujmin offered sacrifice to god for begging a baby. After that, bees stayed on the flower and Grujmin's wife bore a daughter.

c) The Homophones about “People (or Human Being)”

All the Yi people in Guizhou dialectal regions pronounce this word as “ts’o²¹”, whereas Yi in Bijie and Dafang pronounce it as “mi³³”, mixed uses of glyphs are 10 such as “𑄣. 𑄤. 𑄥. 𑄦. 𑄧. 𑄨. 𑄩. 𑄪. 𑄫. 𑄬”. These glyphs are also homophones sharing other 26 definitions.

In Yunnan province, Yi in Wuding and Luquan pronounce this word as “ts’o³³”, their mixed uses of glyphs are 11 such as “𑄭. 𑄮. 𑄯. 𑄰. 𑄱. 𑄲. 𑄳. 𑄴. 𑄵. 𑄶. 𑄷”, among which 3 glyphs are the same as that of Guizhou. These glyphs are also homophones sharing other 14 definitions.

In Yunnan province, Yi in Honghe and Yuxi pronounce this word as “ts’A²¹”. They have 6 mixed uses of glyphs. These words are “𑄸. 𑄹. 𑄺. 𑄻. 𑄼. 𑄽”. These glyphs are also homophones sharing other 26 definitions.

The Yi in Shilin pronounce this word as “ts’o³³”. They have 5 mixed uses of glyphs. These words are “𑄾. 𑄿. 𑅀. 𑅁. 𑅂”. Among these 5 glyphs, the glyph “𑅃” is the same as that of Guizhou, and “𑅄” is the same as that of Honghe and Yuxi.

The Yi people in Sizhuan province pronounce this word as “ts’o³³”. They have 8 mixed uses of glyphs. These words are “𑅅. 𑅆. 𑅇. 𑅈. 𑅉. 𑅊. 𑅋. 𑅌”. Among these 8 glyphs, the two glyphs “𑅍. 𑅎” are the same as that of Guizhou, and “𑅏” is the same as that of Yunnan.

In conclusion, there are 26 homophones in the meaning of “sky” or “heaven”. Meanwhile these 26 homophones share 261 other different definitions. Homophones bearing the meaning of “soil” or “land” are 77 characters in total, which also have the 148 other different definitions. Homophone characters to mean “human” or “people” are 33 with 63 other different definitions in practical use.

4. Information on the user community

There is a population of 7,640,000 people (based on the 2000 year census) in the Yi regions of Yunnan, Sichuan, Guizhou and Guangxi. Concerning information technology, the already encoded Modern Yi was officially put into use as a standardized syllabic writing system by the local government of the northern dialect regions, which was called the Tentative Program for Standardization of Sichuan Liangshan Yi Characters (规范彝文试行方案) worked out in Sichuan in . The program was ratified to put into practice in Liangshan Yi Autonomous Prefecture by the State Council. Though there are over 2,000,000 Yi people residing in the northern dialect region which covered Liangshan area in Sichuan province, part of Lijiang Prefecture and very small part of Zhaotong prefecture in Yunnan Province, only about 600,000 people can be literate with it. Modern Yi basically was 1165 Modern Yi characters derived from the Classical Yi. Though encoded, they are syllabic. In practice, they are very much like the Notation of Annotated Sounds of Chinese (Hanzi), often abbreviated as Zhuyin, or known as Bopomofo (ㄅ ㄆ ㄇ ㄏ) for the first four syllables in this Chinese phonetic symbols. The system uses 37 special symbols taken from the Chinese characters to represent the Mandarin sounds: 21 consonants and 16 vowels. However, it can not be used as a writing system for Hanzi. Though some Modern Yi experts repeatedly advocated using the encoded Modern Yi to standardize all Yi regions, it turned out a fruitless attempt. Classical Yi is in fact a writing system which is very much similar to the Han Characters. In its philological perspective, Classical Yi has all the philological features such as hieroglyphic, ideographic, phonographic, phonetic loaning, associative compounding, and self-explanatory characteristics. This writing system has been used to record ancient Chinese civilization, proof of which can be found in the ancient Yi manuscripts and inscriptive texts on parchments, bamboo rolls, bronze bells, bridges and tombstones in the Yi regions. Since the beginning of fifties in the last century, the Yi translators' agencies have translated dozens of ancient Yi texts. However, they are only few corners of icebergs. There are still thousand volumes of Yi texts remain uncollected and untranslated, let alone information technology use.

5. Principles

- 1) The proposed Classical Yi set is a script (new set of characters) .
- 2) The proposed new set shall be capable of expressing and exchanging all the data in Classical Yi documents and documents with Classical Yi contents, and meeting the needs of the Yi linguists, educationists, publishers, and software developers.
- 3) The ordering of the proposed new set ought to be in accordance with the order of Classical Yi character structure description, and the ordering of Classical Yi strokes.
- 4) The proposed new set ought to be technically operable in information processing.
- 5) All the glyphs employed in the proposed Classical Yi set should be based on the "Anthology of Yunnan, Sichuan, Guizhou and Guangxi Yi Characters" (彝文字集) published by Yunnan National Publishing House, Sichuan Publishing Group, Sichuan National Publishing House, Guizhou National Publishing House for the reason that they are the collective work of the Leading Yi Association Group. Experts from the four Yi populated provinces worked together for over a span of 12 years to sort them from collected Classical Yi ancient texts. Glyphs that are not included

6. Rules of Identification and Sequencing

The graphic character set of Classical Yi ideographs in proposal are specified in the following rule. All the ideographs in the proposal are filtrated from Anthology of Yunnan, Sichuan, Guizhou and Guangxi Yi Characters published by Yunnan National Publishing House, Sichuan Publishing Group in June 2004, and from individual collections by experts of the YSGG Yi Association Group in their research and collation of ancient Yi books after the publication of the anthology.

These rules describe how the ideographs in the standard are derived from the sources by applying a set of unification procedure. It also describes how the ideographs in this standard are arranged in the sequence of consecutive code positions to which they are assigned.

5.1.3.2 Analysis of component features

In the second stage of the procedure, the components located at corresponding nodes of two ideographs are compared, starting from the most superior node, as shown in the following figures:

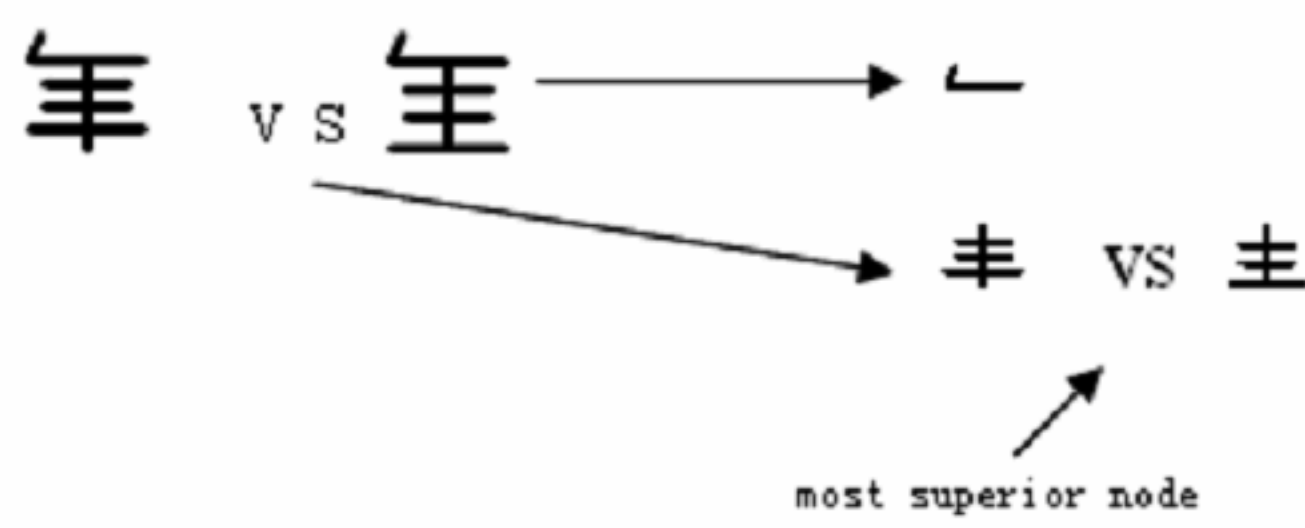

Figure 3

Figure 3, 4 and 5 - The most superior node of a component

The following features of each ideograph to be compared are examined:

- a) the number of components,
- b) the relative position of the components in each complete ideograph,
- c) the structure of corresponding component

If one or more of the features a) to c) above are different between the ideographs in the comparison, the ideographs are considered to have different abstract shapes and are therefore not unified. If all of the features a) to c) above are the same between the ideographs, the ideographs are considered to have the same abstract shape and are therefore unified.

5.1.4 Examples of differences of abstract shapes

To illustrate rules derived from a) to c) in 1.3.2, some typical examples of ideographs that are not unified, owing to differences of abstract shapes, are shown below.

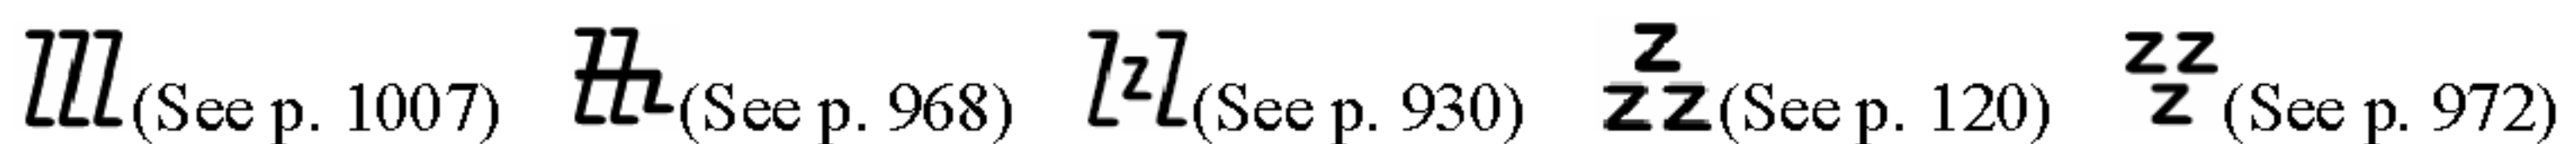

5.1.4.1 Different number of components

The examples below illustrate rule a) since the two ideographs in each pair have different numbers of component

5.1.4.2 Different relative positions of components

The examples below illustrate rule b). Although the two ideographs in each pair have the same number of components, the relative positions of the components are different.

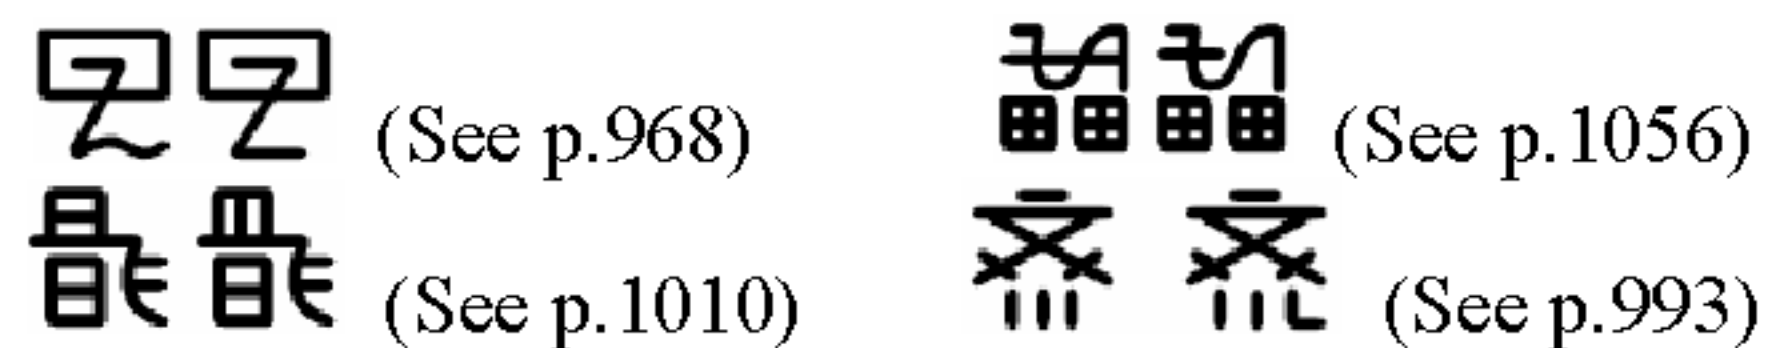

5.1.4.3 Different structure of a corresponding component

The examples below illustrate rule c). The structure of one (or more) corresponding components within the two ideographs in each pair is different.

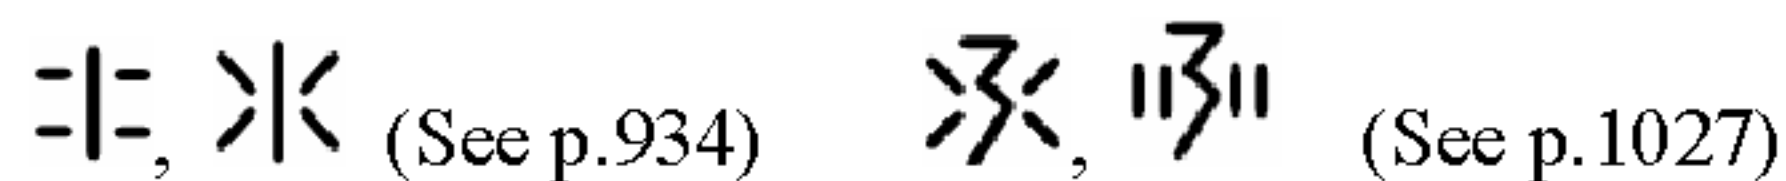

5.1.5 Differences of actual shapes

To illustrate the classification described in 1.2, some typical examples of ideographs that are unified are shown below. The two or three ideographs in each group below have different actual shapes, but they are considered to have the same abstract shape, and are therefore unified.

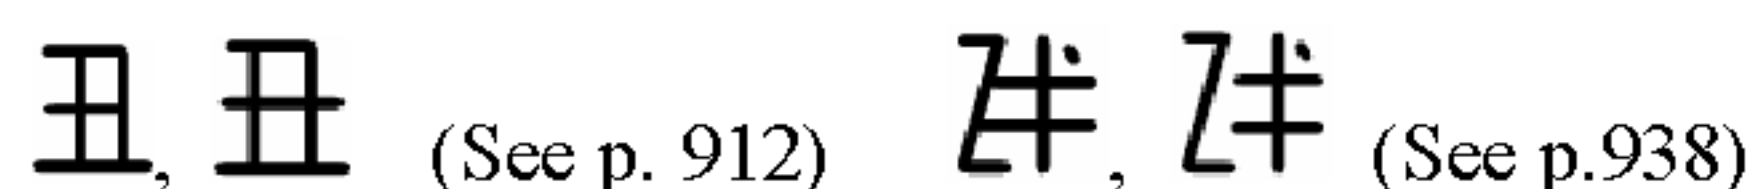

The differences are further classified according to the following example

a) Differences in rotated strokes/dots

b) Differences in overshoot at the stroke initiation and/or termination

c) Differences in contact of strokes

卍, 卍 (See p.912) 卍, 卍 (See p.973)

d) Differences in protrusion at the folded corner of strokes

卍, 卍 (See p.1062) 卍, 卍 (See p.1119)

e) Differences in bent strokes

卍, 卍 (See p.1029) 卍, 卍 (See p.931)

f) Differences in folding back at the stroke termination

卍, 卍 (See p.1048) 卍, 卍 (See p.1047)

g) Differences in accent at the stroke initiation

卍, 卍 (See p.1030) 卍, 卍 (See p.1026)

h) Combinations of the above differences

卍, 卍, 卍, 卍 (See p.935)

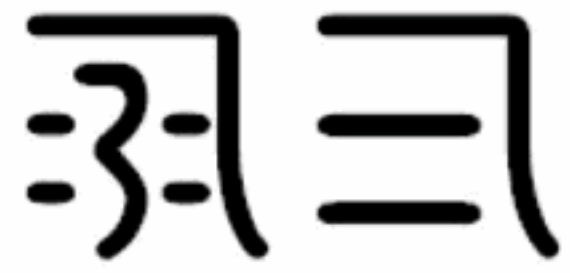

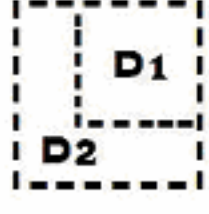

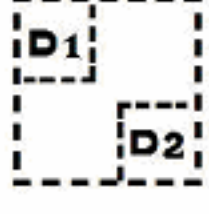

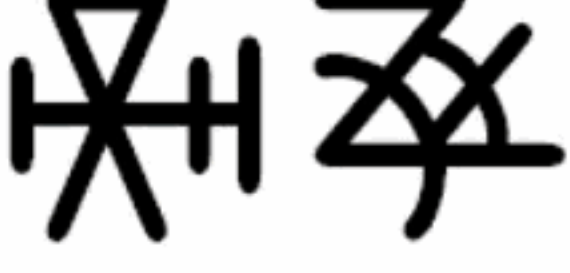

7. Source separation rule

Owing to the fact that the Yi language is divided into six major dialects in the long run of history, variants of glyphs come into being. That's the reason why the Anthology of YSGG Yi Characters keeps a classification of all the Classical Yi ideographs based on their source regions. To preserve data integrity, ideographs with similar stroke shapes and component structures from different regions are to be separately encoded in the standard. Therefore they are not been unified.

The pairs (or triplets) of ideographs shown below are exceptions to the unification rules described in 5 of this proposal. They are not unified because of the source separation rule described 6.

9. Rules of Stroke Sequencing

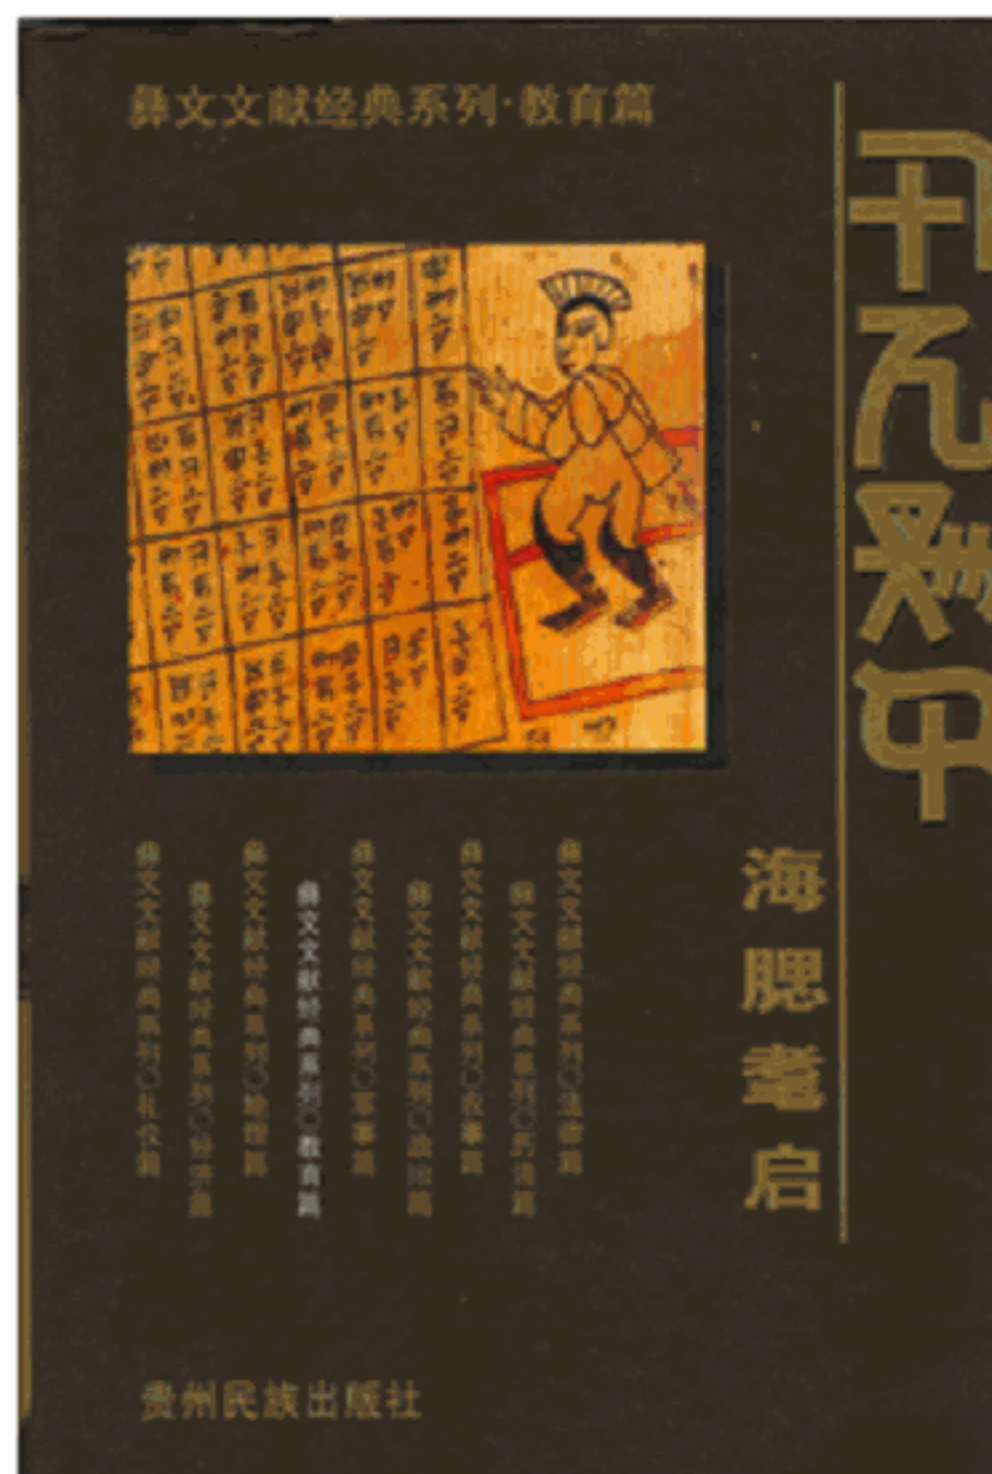

Stroke refers to the successive line in the writing of a stroke. There are three kinds of strokes in Classical Yi ideographs, namely, dotted strokes straight strokes and curve strokes. They are the basic elements of component parts in Classical Yi ideographs. Since there are six major dialects with 25 subdialects in the four provinces of Yunnan, Sichuan, Guizhou and Guangxi, phonetic sequencing is impossible. Therefore, stroke sequencing is the important basis for all the Classical Yi ideographs. The order of stroke sequence follows the orderliness of habitual writing practice, which follows the basic rules of moving the writing pen from up to down and from left to right. Whenever there is a cross with horizontal stroke and vertical stroke, horizontal stroke comes first and vertical stroke second. When arrange the order of strokes, straight strokes goes before curve strokes. Except for some unique counter-clockwise strokes in the Yi ideographs which should be preserved, any composite strokes that do not agree with the basic rules are split to make them agreeable. The following are the rules of writing strokes based on the Yi ideograph structures.

When there is a cross between horizontal stroke and vertical stroke, horizontal stroke goes before vertical stroke. When writing a concrete stroke, the stroke starts from top to bottom and from left to right. If there is a surround stroke with another component stroke inside it, surround stroke goes before the inside strokes. The Yi experts describe this as constructing the pool first before you pour the water in it. For the structure from left to middle and right, if the middle stroke is bigger than the other two, write the middle first. When an ideograph is with a dot on the top and top left, write the dot first. When an ideograph is with a dot on right and in the middle, write the dot after the other strokes. For surround structures from two sides, surround from upper right 1 and left 0, write the outside first. For surround structures from lower left 2, write the inside first. For surround structure from three sides (ideographs basically formed with square pane and round pane): 1. write the inside first if the ideograph is with opening to the top; 2. write the surround stroke first if the ideograph is with opening to the bottom; 3. write the surround stroke first if the ideograph is with opening to the right; 4. write the surround stroke first if the ideograph is with opening to the left.
